WAIT POR ME. Wait for me, love,
When you reach the silent and silver strand,
By the bank of the river wide and grand,
That flows this side of the beautiful land,
Wait for me.

Wait for me, love, I will journey on down the western side, And meet you tacre by the mystic tide, By the silent river, deep and wide, Wait for me.

Wait for me, love, When the beatman, silent, cold and pole, Rows over his bark, with its snowy white sail, We if leave together this sorrowful vale, Wait for me.

Wait for me, love,
We will trend logether the beautiful shore,
When the silent boatman rows us o'er—
To part, my darting, ob, nevermore!
Wait for me.
